

To whom it may concern,
Xm satellite radio should not be limited to not include traffic, weather, and other valuable information. Think about it, what happens if somebody in a rural area cannot receive valuable crisis information because they live in an area without radio reception. The only way they would be able to receive that information is through XM radio. I suggest for all people rural and urban, that you let them get there information from what ever medium they decide. Furthermore it should not be up to you, the consumer should decide with there buying power.

Thank You,
Jason Bryant